

Christian Churches

There are many features which are usually found in a traditional English church. The plan of the church is often laid out in the shape of a _____. The most important feature of the church is the _____. This is a table which lies at the _____ end of the church in an area known as the _____.

The people who come to worship at the church are known as the _____. They often sit on wooden benches known as _____. They sit facing the altar. The worshipers sit in an area known as the _____.

In front of the chancel there is often a special reading stand called a _____. Members of the congregation sometimes read from the Bible at this place.

The person leading the worship speaks from a special platform known as a _____. This is often made of wood or stone and has steps leading up to it to raise the speaker above the congregation.

At the back of the church there is often a special container known as a _____. This is used to hold the water during baptism ceremonies.

Many churches have a _____ or _____. These are the highest parts of the church. Bells are hung in this area and these are rung to tell the worshipers when to come to the church.

eastern	font	lectern	spire	chancel
nave	congregation	cross	pews	pulpit
tower	altar

Christian Churches

There are many features which are usually found in a traditional English church. The plan of the church is often laid out in the shape of a _____. The most important feature of the church is the _____. This is a table which lies at the _____ end of the church in an area known as the _____.

The people who come to worship at the church are known as the _____. They often sit on wooden benches known as _____. They sit facing the altar. The worshipers sit in an area known as the _____.

In front of the chancel there is often a special reading stand called a _____. Members of the congregation sometimes read from the Bible at this place.

The person leading the worship speaks from a special platform known as a _____. This is often made of wood or stone and has steps leading up to it to raise the speaker above the congregation.

At the back of the church there is often a special container known as a _____. This is used to hold the water during baptism ceremonies.

Many churches have a _____ or _____. These are the highest parts of the church. Bells are hung in this area and these are rung to tell the worshipers when to come to the church.

eastern	font	lectern	spire	chancel
nave	congregation	cross	pews	pulpit
tower	altar			